

FUEL SUCCESS

TEACHER-CURATED eBOOK COLLECTIONS
FOR HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

High school is the jumping-off point for big adventures. So it's crucial we get students back on track to thrive, not just survive. In addition to personalizing instruction and strengthening critical-thinking skills, it's vital to break barriers by strengthening social and emotional learning and advocating for diversity and inclusion. Do it all with Gale eBooks. Our teacher-curated collections align with curriculum standards while focusing on the most popular subjects and school priorities. They also deliver high-quality content from diverse authors and top publishers, like Macmillan Reference USA, Greenwood Publishing Group, and ABC-CLIO. Better yet, they meet learners where they are—physically and emotionally.

BUILD SKILLS FOR THE FUTURE

Gale eBooks is designed to cross-search all of your titles from Gale at the chapter level to pinpoint relevant material. The result? Students spend less time looking for credible information and more time making new discoveries. Gale eBooks offers students an award-winning, hassle-free eBook experience they can access anytime, anywhere, and on any device.

ACCESSIBLE FOR ALL LEARNERS

WORKFLOW TOOLS

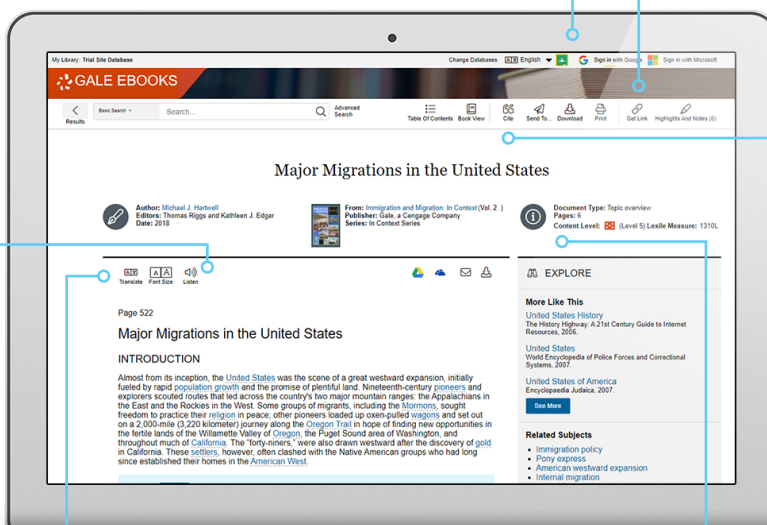

Expand access and increase discovery by integrating Gale resources into your learning management system. Add to that the power of G Suite for Education and Microsoft Office 365 tools, which enable users to easily share, save, and download content—including highlights and notes.

SHAREABLE LINKS

Persistent URLs allow educators to incorporate materials into the students' workflow. They can be used in learning management systems or in curriculum planning to guide students to supplemental course materials.

READSPEAKER TEXT-TO-SPEECH TECHNOLOGY

Audio files can be downloaded and saved onto any device in more than 40 different languages.

ADOPTING NEW CURRICULUM STANDARDS? GALE CAN HELP!

Curriculum standards adoptions are happening from coast-to-coast. Supporting these requirements can be challenging, but it's not impossible. The specialists at Gale have been teachers too, and they will work with you every step of the way to provide hand-curated eBook collections aligned to your school's needs. Explore a sample alignment of the CA History–Social Science Framework below.

California adopted a new framework for History–Social Science (HSS) across K–12. Four key areas of the framework include content knowledge, discipline inquiry, student literacy, and citizenship. More than 700 titles have been aligned to the framework across three collections:

CA History–Social Science Alignment Elementary School
CA History–Social Science Alignment Middle School
CA History–Social Science Alignment High School

CREATING A DISTRICT-WIDE “SECURITY BLANKET” SO KIDS FEEL LESS ALONE

Learn how this librarian’s determination helped her secure funding for much-needed online SEL resources for students across the district, from elementary through high school.

Laurie Nordahl
Librarian
North Bend High School
North Bend, OR

Nordahl uses an “invisible backpack” to acknowledge the emotions that students carry around, even if they can’t be seen on the outside. It reminds students that Cameron’s Collection is there to help.

FOCUSING ON MENTAL WELLNESS

Nationally, one out of five teens suffer from mental health challenges, and more than 75 percent don’t seek help.¹ With social issues changing life as we know it, it’s even more important that students learn how to deal with their emotions in a healthy way. That’s why Laurie Nordahl, a librarian at North Bend High School, began advocating to make Cameron’s Collection and Cameron’s Camp for Wellness available to students across her district.

These age-appropriate eBook collections—Cameron’s Collection for middle and high school and Cameron’s Camp for Wellness for elementary—include more than 100 eBooks curated by Gale in partnership with the Cameron K. Gallagher Foundation. Cameron Gallagher was a bright and talented young girl who suffered from depression and anxiety. Her dream was to raise awareness about teenage depression and anxiety and erase the stigmas. At 16, Cameron passed away, but her legacy and efforts live on.

The collections are great first steps for kids who aren’t ready to seek in-person help or want privacy while they explore, and Nordahl wanted to provide these resources for all the students in her district. She began by planting seeds about how useful the resources would be. She talked about it with school leaders, counselors, and teachers every chance she got.

“The real ‘gotta-have-it-right-now’ moment came when we lost a student to suicide,” she said. “It devastated our school community, and after the initial surge of support, some students were still processing. If a student was up in the middle of the night thinking about these things, I wanted them to have access to these quality, vetted resources.”

Through her persistence, funding for Cameron’s Collection at the high school level eventually came through the normal channels. However, when she attempted to gain funding to add K–8 collections, it became tougher. She got creative and applied for competitive COVID-19 grants, offered by the State Library of Oregon with funds from the Library Services and Technology Act.

“There are a lot of kids who aren’t seeking help, but this is a way they can start that process privately. To me, this resource is worth every penny if I help even one student.”

HAVING RESOURCES AT THE READY

In 2020, Nordahl was awarded the grants and received the funds needed to offer the K–8 collections, including Cameron’s Camp for Wellness, which provides targeted guidance on sensitive issues for elementary students.

“When I introduce Cameron’s Collection to classes, I want them to know Cameron was a real person—and that Cameron wanted people to be able to talk about these things and get help,” Nordahl said. For teachers, Cameron’s Collection is a simple way to incorporate authentic social and emotional learning into instruction.

Along with in-person discussions, Nordahl uses ready-made marketing materials from the Gale support site to promote the resources. She takes advantage of every possible avenue to keep Cameron’s Collection visible to those who may need it.

TAKING BABY STEPS

“I have always tried to make the library not only a warm, welcoming place but the place students can get answers and help for anything,” Nordahl said.

But with the prevalence of blended and online learning, students may not have in-person access to supportive environments like this. That’s where the power of the Gale eBooks platform comes in. With unlimited online access, students don’t have to wait for someone to return a title before they can read it. With private, online reading, they don’t have to worry about what people will think. With age-appropriate content, they can explore challenging topics in a safe space. Plus, the eBooks can be translated into dozens of languages, providing access for more students and families.

Nordahl is proud of her library for providing this essential content, but she knows her job isn’t done. “You can start small and build a collection while you’re seeking funding. You don’t have to purchase the entire collection at once,” she said. “It’s about taking baby steps.”

SUPPORT SEL WITH CAMERON'S COLLECTION

When kids are struggling with mental health issues, the fear of being viewed as different can be a barrier to asking for help. Together, we can support students by providing private, targeted mental health resources and guidance to support children and teens like Cameron.

THE SITUATION

1 IN 5 TEENS SUFFER FROM MENTAL HEALTH CHALLENGES. MORE THAN 75 PERCENT DON'T SEEK HELP.¹

Schools are placing an even greater emphasis on social and emotional learning (SEL) to:

Meet the diverse needs of students and the adults who support them.

Provide content that is relevant, relatable, and reliable.

Ensure privacy for students and families.

Make sure students have access to resources when, and where, it's needed.

WHAT SCHOOLS ARE SAYING

"As educators, we must provide the best materials and resources for every student. Offering Cameron's Collection to our students, parents, teachers, and staff 24/7 is a step in the right direction."

—Julia Desalernos
Library Media Teacher
Stauffer Middle School, CA

"Privacy is so important. A kid who's exploring their mental health, dealing with cyberbullying, or researching depression doesn't necessarily want to walk around with a book."

—Anne Ernst
Library Media Specialist
Charlottesville High School, VA

"We need support now and in a way that's best for students. So, we purchased Gale eBooks focused around mental health."
